Huijue Optical Module Product Information

Overview

Huijue Optical Module Code The tool streamlines the process and allows manufacturers to request and obtain Optical Product Codes online as well as process.

Key Takeaways

Huijue Optical Modules, including the C600 series, are high-performance optical components designed for advanced visual and data transmission applications.

Product Overview

Huijue offers a range of optical modules suitable for high-resolution imaging, prototyping, and integration into innovative designs. The C600 optical module is highlighted for its versatility, high resolution, and seamless integration capabilities, making it ideal for both research and commercial applications. These modules are engineered to support modern optical systems and can be used in conjunction with various LC interface optical transceivers for high-speed data transmission.

Applications

Huijue optical modules are commonly used in: Data centers and high-performance computing (HPC) environments, supporting ultra-high bandwidth requirements with advanced modulation technologies. Prototyping and innovative design projects, where high-resolution optical performance is critical. Telecommunications and network infrastructure, often integrated with optical transceivers for reliable signal transmission.

Technical FeaturesHigh-resolution output for precise imaging and data applications. Seamless integration with existing optical systems and transceivers. Compatibility with LC interface and MPO connectors for flexible deployment in data networks.

Support for high-speed data transmission, including 800G QSFP-DD and OSFP modules for next-generation AI and HPC networks.

Availability and Suppliers

Huijue optical modules are available through B2B distributors and online platforms such as Europages and Alibaba, where verified suppliers provide pricing and direct contact options. These modules are part of Huijue Group's broader portfolio, which also includes energy storage and network communication solutions, reflecting the company's expertise in high-tech optical and ICT infrastructure products.

Summary

Huijue optical modules, particularly the C600 series, offer high-performance, versatile solutions for optical imaging, data transmission, and integration into advanced technological systems. They are suitable for both commercial and research applications, with strong support for high-speed, high-resolution optical networks and compatibility with modern transceiver interfaces.
