Southern European fiber optic cable companies

Overview

A 2026 ranking of the top 15 fiber optic cable companies in Europe — Prysmian, Nexans, Nokia, Leoni, Acome, Hexatronic and more — with technology, markets, and hot-sale products for each brand.

Key Takeaways

Key Southern European fiber optic cable companies include Prysmian Group (Italy), Tratos Group (Italy), Nexans (France), and Upcom Technologies (Turkey), alongside hundreds of smaller regional suppliers.

Major Manufacturers

Prysmian Group (Italy) Prysmian is the largest cable manufacturer in the world by revenue, with a strong presence in Southern Europe. They specialize in high-density optical fibers, including their BendBrightXS and Sirocco™ ranges, and are pioneers in Hollow-Core Fiber technology for ultra-low latency applications. Their products cover FTTH, subsea cables, and AI data center connectivity, making them a leading choice for large-scale infrastructure projects.

Tratos Group (Italy) Tratos has over 50 years of experience in cable manufacturing, producing fiber optic cables for industrial, residential, and subsea applications. They emphasize research and development, sustainability, and innovative cable solutions tailored to energy, infrastructure, and telecommunications sectors. Nexans (France) Although headquartered in France, Nexans serves Southern Europe extensively.

They provide CPR-compliant fiber optic cables that meet strict fire safety standards and maintain signal integrity under challenging conditions. Nexans also focuses on sustainable production and carbon footprint tracking for each cable drum. Upcom Technologies (Turkey) Upcom Technologies specializes in high-performance fiber optic cables for telecommunications and data networking.

Their portfolio includes FTTH solutions, data center cables, and telecom cables, supported by rigorous testing and certification processes.

Regional Supplier Landscape

Southern Europe hosts over 225 fiber optic product suppliers, with the majority being small, single-owner operations. These suppliers are increasingly establishing digital presences, with many maintaining websites, LinkedIn profiles, and social media accounts to facilitate business outreach. This diverse ecosystem allows for both large-scale procurement from multinational manufacturers and more localized sourcing from smaller, agile suppliers.

Summary

For Southern Europe, the fiber optic market is dominated by Italy-based Prysmian and Tratos, France-based Nexans, and Turkey-based Upcom Technologies, complemented by a wide network of smaller regional suppliers. These companies collectively cover a broad spectrum of applications, from FTTH rollouts and data centers to subsea and industrial cabling, offering both high-tech solutions and flexible local support.
