Key Takeaways

Companies like Atkore International, Legrand, Chalfant Manufacturing, and Snake Tray offer specialized cable tray systems, including trapezoidal designs, with customizable solutions for industrial and commercial applications.

Leading Manufacturers

Atkore International is a prominent manufacturer of cable trays and cable management systems, providing customizable stainless steel trays suitable for various industries, including construction and telecommunications. They offer tailored solutions and can support international shipping to countries like the USA, Germany, and China, making them a reliable choice for trapezoidal cable trays. Legrand offers the Cablofil brand, known for wire mesh and heavy-duty cable trays.

Their products are adaptable and can be customized for specific applications, including trapezoidal configurations, ensuring compliance with industry standards and ease of installation. Chalfant Manufacturing specializes in high-quality cable tray systems, including innovative lines like self-connecting GR_Magic and RKS-Magic trays, which can be tailored to trapezoidal shapes. With decades of experience, they provide solutions that meet both customer needs and industry standards.

Snake Tray is a leading manufacturer in the US, offering aluminum and steel cable trays with a focus on innovative cable management solutions. Their product lines are versatile and can accommodate trapezoidal designs for data centers, solar installations, and industrial projects.

Additional Considerations

When selecting a supplier for trapezoidal cable trays, consider: Customization capabilities: Ensure the manufacturer can produce trays in trapezoidal shapes and sizes specific to your project. Material options: Stainless steel, aluminum, or coated steel may be available depending on environmental and load requirements. Compliance and standards: Look for adherence to EN 61537, ISO 9001, or IEC standards for safety and quality.

Global availability: Some manufacturers provide international shipping and support, which is useful for multinational projects. These companies are recognized for their expertise in specialized cable tray systems, making them suitable partners for projects requiring trapezoidal cable trays.
